Becoming an Indian Novelist: A Journey

Chandrachras Choudhury

Monday | September 23 | 2019
Luce 203 | 4:30pm

The writer Chandrachras Choudhury will describe the eight years he spent writing his new novel Clouds (Simon & Schuster). He will talk about evolving as an artist, political thinker, citizen, traveller and even cook. The goal: to try and grasp, and then represent in new narrative forms, the public and private lives, the conflicts and dilemmas, of a variety of Indians at one of the most crucial periods in Indian history -- the age that later generations will look back on as "the first century of Indian democracy."